CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—The railroad labor board today denied the motion of W. [illegible] quest of E. F. Grable, president of the maintenance employes, the hearing then was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

With the demand for definition of "living wage," the board was confronted with the request to extend eastern roads against which the striking employes [illegible] the wage dispute.

These questions were raised when the hearing began yesterday. The board was asked by E. F. When the protest was made, Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the board, recalled that the board refused to recognize striking switchmen in 1920, pending their return to work.

The labor's presentation of its case was opened today with indications that the [illegible] would be taken up during the [illegible] before the board.

The suit is to be filed today, it was said, by attorneys for Nicholas E. Schaeffer, husband of the beautiful woman who was found last week in a cope den.

"All the charges in the proposed suit are false," said Bunts when informed of the proposed suit. "And I'll see Schaeffer in hell first before I'll pay him one cent."

Use Tear Gas On Reformatory Men To Quell Riots

IONA, Mich., Aug. 29.—State police are stationed at the state reformatory here today as the result of an outbreak among the inmates last night that was suppressed only when tear gas was poured into one of the dormitories where the rioting centered.

ASSESSMENT FOR BANKERS LIFE CO. ORDERED REDUCED

County Commissioners Cut $275,000 From Assessed Valuation.

Increase Made by J. A. Sheffield is Overruled and Cancelled.

Upon recommendation of the county attorney, the Lancaster county board of commissioners Tuesday morning passed a resolution cancelling $275,000 of the 1921 assessment on capital stock and premiums of the Bankers Life Insurance company, which was added to the company's return by County Assessor J. A. Sheffield.

At the time the assessment was [illegible] by the assessor, the county board of equalization ruled that [illegible] should be extended on the company's original return and directed that the assessor's books be corrected. The records were not [illegible] it was claimed by the [illegible] representatives, and the matter was taken up with the board of commissioners. The board, acting upon the advice of County Attorney Mason, ordered a correction of the tax list.

The amounts voluntarily assessed by the county assessor stood against the company whose only relief was the cancellation of the amounts on premiums that they were erroneous. The company's real estate was assessed at $268,000. The amount and [illegible] on premiums written only in Lancaster county will be paid in taxes. Thus, the $275,000 assessments on the company's capital stock and $10,000 on premiums written outside Lancaster county were cancelled.

The principal objection to the assessment on the capital stock was that it is included in the real estate assessment, which would mean double taxation.

The Bankers Life Insurance company has appealed to the county board three times from the county assessments and threatened to do so again if the cancellation had not been made. M. L. Sommerville appeared before the board and strenuously protested to the cancellation "as a friend of the taxpayer."

WANTS AUTHORITY TO GRAB CARRIERS

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—President Harding still believes that congress should grant him immediately authority to take over railroads and mining properties, it was said today at the white house, but was assured by congressional spokesmen that only the gravest public necessity would move him to exercise such powers if granted.

If congress indicates unwillingness to enact the legislation necessary, the president does not intend to push his opinion, it was said, officials adding that he does not believe that there is any present necessity for action under such a grant.

Dog Property of Griswold, Ruling Made By Stevens

The ownership of the disputed terrier, a hearing of which occupied most of Tuesday morning in Justice Stevens court, was awarded at 1 p. m. Tuesday to A. J. Griswold, 62[illegible] South Twenty-Ninth street, who had the dog replevined from Mr and Mrs. Thos Duncan, 2845 Dudley street.

Justice Stevens observed in passing judgment, that dogs were not numbered like automobiles but that the evidence in his belief showed that the dog belonged to Griswold. The plaintiff had testified that he had paid $35 for the animal, and Duncan said he paid $10 for him.

MRS. MAGNEY IS TOLD SHE'S WRONG

Governor McKelvie Writes a Letter to Critic at Omaha.

Executive Tells of Administrative Code and Budget System.

In a letter written to Mrs. George A. Magney of Omaha, a member of the Douglas county women's democratic club, Governor McKelvie takes her to task for some of the criticisms of his code law which she voiced in a recent address before that organization. Among her statements to which Mr. McKelvie takes exception are these:

That the code law vests control of the state's entire business in the governor.

That the governor appoints the various officials and aides under the code and fixes their salaries.

That the session gives too much power in the governor's hands and destroys many of the checks and balances necessary to an efficient business administration.

That it takes away the powers of elected officers and gives them to appointees of the governor.

That it has increased the expenses of state government by creating a horde of new positions.

That it enables the governor to build up a powerful political machine.

Like U. S. Government.

Mr. McKelvie asserts, in his communication to Mrs. Magney that the code system is the same plan as that on which the national government is operated and on which successful private business is managed. He says it does not deprive the elected officers of any constitutional powers, but only supersedes a number of state boards and commissions which were created by statute. The only persons he appoints, he declares, are the six code secretaries, subject to legislative confirmation, and they in turn appoint their departmental assistants.

The governor claims that considering the amount of work done at the present time, the work is being done by fewer employes than under the old system.

He meets the charge that the code has enabled him to build up a political machine by stating that the same accusation is made against any form of administration, and is wholly a matter of opinion.

The governor insists that the code, in connection with his executive budget, has provided a check on state expenditures, making it possible to reduce the appropriations $2,000,000 at the special session of the legislature last winter, and to reduce the state tax levy about one-third.

Mr. McKelvie says the repeal of the code and the discontinuance of shifting of its departments would interfere with the working of the state compensation law and child welfare activities.

One of Phil Bross's pamphlets showing how the code departments are organized, together with a printed report on state expenditures for the last fiscal year, is being sent by the governor to Mrs. Magney.

MAINTENANCE OF WAY MEN STRIKE

Twelve Burlington Employes Protest Against Non-Union Engineer on Wrecker.

Twelve Burlington maintenance of way men struck Monday. It has been learned, when a non-union engineer was put on the wrecking locomotive, the crew of which belong ordinarily to the shop crafts. At the Burlington division headquarters the report of the walkout by a dozen workmen was verified but another reported strike of thirty-six men and an orchestra at one of the other camps, was branded as false.

Yeggs Get Away With $92,000 In Cash and Paper

LETHBRIDGE, Alberta, Aug. 29.—Five motor bandits invaded the town of Foremost early today, bound and gagged employes of the Union bank, blew the safe and escaped with $92,000 in cash and negotiable securities.

LOUD PRAISE FOR CODE BUT NOBODY COULD GIVE FACTS

Republicans Unable to Enlighten Miss Kellogg On Merits of System.

Bross Alone Qualified to Answer Questions But He Was Not There.

Governor McKelvie's code law was warmly endorsed by half a dozen speakers at the republican state committee meeting in the Lindell hotel Monday evening; but when a woman member of the committee, Miss Jessie Kellogg of Red Cloud, asked to be enlightened upon its merits, so that she could answer criticisms of the law in her home community, nobody could give her the desired information.

"We have to admit that our folks over in Red Cloud are growing over the code all a while now," Miss Kellogg stated, "I want someone here who will give me the facts about it. If there is anyone who can do this, I'm glad to talk with him after the meeting."

An awkward silence followed. Previous speakers had praised the code as declaring that if the real facts relating it were given to the voters the republican party would surely win. But no one present seemed to know anything about the facts.

State Senator C. H. Randall, candidate for governor, who helped to put the code law through the legislature in 1919 and who had the backing of the code organization in the recent primaries, was sitting across from but he had nothing to say.

Chairman E. B. Perry waited a moment for someone to volunteer, and then inquired:

"Is Mr. Bross here?"

Bross Absent. Nothing Doing.

There was a general craning of necks to ascertain whether Phil Bross, lord high chamberlain of the code administration was anywhere about. He is the man who gets up charts and statistics in rainbow colored pamphlets paid for by the state, to prove that the code still has promised efficiency and economy in the state government.

Earlier in the evening Mr. Bross had been privately urging upon the [illegible] conferring with T. A. Metcalf and others and setting up the line for Perry's section to the chairmanship. But when that event was accomplished Mr. Bross left, presumably to report to Governor McKelvie the success of his efforts.

Consequently, when the call for help came, Mr. Bross was not at hand. And there was nobody else qualified to give the woman from Red Cloud a diagram showing what a blessing the code law has been to the people of Nebraska.

"How long do you expect to be in session?" Chairman Perry finally inquired of Miss Kellogg.

"I'm going to stay over tomorrow," she responded.

"We will see that the information is furnished to you in the meantime," Judge Perry promised.

So, when Miss Kellogg goes home to Red Cloud, she will carry with her a generous supply of dope, supplied by the $5,000-a-year secretary of finance [illegible] Governor McKelvie's code cabinet with which to enlighten her deluded neighbors who have been complaining about high taxes.

Bob Smith Praises Code.

Bob Smith of Omaha, chief political lieutenant of R. B. Howell, came valiantly to the defense of the code system in a speech to the committee, preceding Miss Kellogg's re-

Two Farmers are Held for Trial on Liquor Charges

Albert Wilson and Conrad Seitz, farmers near Deshler, were bound over to the district court Monday at Hebron, on charges of illegal possession and manufacturing of liquor according to State Sheriff Gus Hyers, whose office Tuesday noon was in receipt of a report to that effect from Deputy State Sheriff John Jones.

According to the report, Jones and Sheriff Hall of Hebron made the arrests. They found a 20-gallon still and 100 gallons of mash in the possession of Seitz, they said, and a gallon of whisky. Wilson is altered to have possessed a 40-gallon still, 100 gallons of mash, and the still was said to be in operation when the officers came. Both the automobile was ordered confiscated by the court.

Burlington Shop Force Continues To Grow Larger

The Burlington reports a total of 5,741 workmen in the shops of the lines west in the places of about 4,000 strikers. This is the report made Monday. At Havelock the workmen in the shops now number more than 600 and the feeding and sleeping accommodations are taxed to their utmost capacity. At the Burlington employment office it was said that about thirty men had been hired before noon on Tuesday.

It was reported that the girl and the youth were seen boarding a train for Omaha.

The company maintains it cannot do that because of the increased costs.

Postmaster W. L. McClay returned early Tuesday morning from a month's vacation spent as the guest of Forry Moore, former Lincoln man, at Yakima, Wash.

"The trout, averaging about 10 to 16 inches in length, were plentiful and fishing was excellent," Mr. McClay said. "We saw many small forest fires. The days were hot, around 100 degrees, but nights always cool—around forty degrees. We saw lots of deer and mountain goats."

Two Families in Court Trying to Establish Identity of Dog

The identity of a snow white fox terrier, with black and brown ears, whose name is said to be "Muggins" alias "Bobbie" occupied the attention most of Tuesday morning, of Justice W. T. Stevens, two lawyers, an assistant county attorney and a crowd of spectators that filled the courtroom. The little dog as if unconscious of the pertinent discussion going on about him, was tied to the leg of a table, around which he constantly coursed. He answered alike to the names of 'Muggins" and 'Bobbie" and thus precluded the possibility of being placed himself on the witness stand.

James Griswold, 620 South Twenty-ninth street, and John W. Duncan and Neva Duncan of 2345 Dudley each claim the dog, and Griswold had the dog deplevined. Mr. Griswold claims that he bought the dog as a puppy from Albert Duffield, of University Place, in July, 1921, and that he had the dog until April, 1922 when it disappeared. Mr. Griswold claims that he did not see it again until this month, when he found it in the possession of the Duncans. The Duncans claim that it is their dog and that it is named Bobbie and not Muggins, and that they got it from a man named Marcy.

The plainiff introduced a snapshot taken last summer of his boy and Muggins when he was a puppy. The snapshot in a general way resembles the dog in question, it is said.

Paul Dowling, 13, living at 633 South Thirtieth street, who is a neighbor of Griswold testified to having seen such a dog as the dog in question at Griswold home.

Both sides were prepared to fight the case to a finish, and at noon court was adjourned oo 1 oclock Tuesday afternoon, when testimony will be taken for the Duncans.

William Splinter, Eighth and W streets, entered a plea of not guilty and his case was set for trial for 9 a. m. Wednesday.

Roy B. Ford, attorney for the Retail Grocers' association, appeared against the defendants. He testified that he had sent C. Matsen, 1630 N street, last Sunday to the different fruit stores and that Matsen had purchased canned goods at every store.

Wives Plaintiffs In Three Actions In District Court

Custody of the minor children is sought by Mrs. Scott.

Nelson L. Chinnock was sued by his wife, Nettie, for separate maintenance. They were married in Omaha thirty-two years ago and lived together until the latter part of July, 1922, when Mrs. Chinock declares her husband left their home. She further charges that her husband refused and neglected to furnish coal with which to heat their home last winter and she worked to buy proper food and clothing.

WILSON PARTY IS BACK FROM EUROPE.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wilson, Miss Helen Wilson and Mrs. Emma Holyoke returned last evening from a delightful summer's sojourn in Europe. Three months were devoted to travel, sightseeing and visits to many places of interest in England and on the continent.

The party landed at Cherbourg on the French coast and following a visit to Paris and that part of France, Nice and Monte Carlo were next on the itinerary. Nice and Monte Carlo they found most charming and one of the most enjoyable experiences of the trip, said Mrs. Wilson, was the beautiful Corniche drive from Nice to Monte Carlo. They were there at the time of the funeral of the Prince of Monaco and to enter this little country, the smallest in the world, over which this prince ruled, it was necessary to have passports. Monte Carlo is noted for its lovely situation and scenery. From France and Monte Carlo, the Wilson family and Mrs. Emma Holyoke entered Italy, visiting Genoa, Pisa, Florence, Rome and Venice and the Italian lakes.

They journeyed through Switzerland, stopping at Lake Geneva for a sojourn which, according to Mrs. Wilson, stands out as one of the great pleasures of the trip. They visited Belgium and Holland and crossed from Holland to England.

"Shopping was not the joy it was when we were over in 1902," Mrs. Wilson said in speaking of their experiences, for prices are much higher." In Holland, particularly, prices were high but the country appeared very prosperous and thriving. In Italy it was rather the reverse and there they found prices lower though it was the exchange which made it so and not that the prices were low for the natives.

Mrs. Wilson spoke of the difference in the number of Lincoln people whom they met during their former trip and on this trip, and the fact that they met only one this year. The one person was Mrs. W. A. Green, who has been abroad since last February and expects to remain until late in the fall. Over thirty Lincoln people were encountered during the trip in the summer of 1902. The Wilson party did not follow the usual tourist itinerary and for this reason did not meet the tourist travel, though there was no lack of people traveling, in fact there were many of them, but they were the natives who seemed to be constantly going from place to place.

MORRIS FRIEND AND GUGENHEIMS RETURN.

Morris Friend, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Edward Gugenheim, Mr. Gugenheim and daughters, Adelphine and Marian, arrived home last evening. Mr. Friend left the middle of April for a trip to Europe and the spring and early summer were spent abroad. On his return his daughter and family, who had motored east, met him in New York and several weeks were spent motoring there. They visited New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and the battlefields of Gettysburg where several days or a week was spent in each place. They returned home by way of the Cumberland and Alleghany mountains to Wheeling, W. Va., and through Columbus, Dayton, Ohio, Indianapolis and Chicago. The trip east was made by way of Chicago and the lakes to Buffalo Albany and New York.

The trip during which they traveled over 3,000 miles was made without any trouble or accident of any kind and with only one puncture.

They are very pleasantly located at Santa Monica, their home is about a mile from the ocean front. Miss McNabb visited San Diego while there and many short trips were taken to places of interest.

Following the luncheon Miss Wilson gave a short talk telling of the reconstruction work in the French village which suffered so terribly in the war. The work is being done by the national society and Miss Wilson with a party of national officers recently made a visit to the village and was there at the time of the dedication of the water works.

GOLD NOT WORTH MUCH AS PAPER

Lincoln Travelers Find Peculiar Situation in Europe.

Countries Greatly Depressed But Making Brave Struggle.

Gold, generally the most easily used money in the world, is at a discount in Europe, according to H. H. Wilson, who has just returned from a two months tour there. He advises American tourists to take letters of credit, which ranks first, other money values in order being checks and bills of government notes. Mr. Wilson took $50 in gold for emergency use, only to find that it was worth less than paper. This is because no gold is being circulated and it is impossible for bankers to ship it out of the country without a special permit. He received 11.50 Francs on a dollar for the gold while he would have received 11.80 on a letter of credit.

Another peculiar feature which was noted by the Lincoln attorney was that in countries where currency is nearest to normal, everything costs more, figured in American money. In Switzerland and Holland, which are prosperous and whose money is nearly at par, rates were higher than in Italy and France.

Surface impressions gained by Mr. Wilson convince him that Europe is making a real attempt to win back prosperity by hard work. Everyone over there looks on America as "the land of gold," and a large amount of local trade is due to tourists from this side. As usual, this business is well developed. Very little improvement was noticed in Italy, while in Holland is building up rapidly. In the devastated regions of France, travelers see hundreds of thousands of acres yet unreclaimed. Driving along through Lorraine one may see a very highly cultivated field on one side of the road, while on the other side is torn up field, filled with shell holes and covered with barb wire and of debris. Since the soil was much disturbed, production is bound to follow for years.

Build Temporary Houses.

Hundreds of towns in this region are almost in the same condition as they were following the war. Temporary wooden houses have been built in the fields while only a few business firms have cleared away the shell damaged debris and rebuilt on their original locations. Mr. Wilson thinks these towns will ultimately be rebuilt much as before.

Travel conditions are much improved according to Mr. Wilson. Ports are a great notice, equipment is poor and international accommodations are limited. In Switzerland, however, he saw a fine train service through from Paris to Constantinople. The bulk of first class passengers on most trains are Americans, as they are at the leading hotels, he says.

England is badly depressed by the unemployment situation, which comes from the let-down in commerce. As of Europe's business seems to be badly suffering from the fluctuations in money values, and the constantly changing rate of exchange is doing more than anything else to hold down commercial development.

Mr. Wilson left Lincoln June 3 and traveled through Italy, southern France, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, northern France and England. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, their daughter, Helen, and Mrs. E. J. Holyoke. The party returned Monday night.

LEGION BITTERLY SCORES VETERANS BUREAU ATTITUDE

Lincoln Post Demands That Government Agency Be Actually Discentralized.

Order's Position in Politics Made Clear—Elect State Convention Delegates.

A flood of bitter oratory, scoring the Veterans Bureau for its directors' attitude and stand in recently removing the permanent medical staff charged with the care of disabled veterans from Lincoln, and the tendency shown to centralize the efforts of the bureau in larger centers, broke loose at the regular meeting of Lincoln Post No. 3, the American Legion, Monday night, in discussion of resolutions to be supported at the state legion convention beginning at York, Sept. 17.

"Be it resolved that the Veterans Bureau be decentralized in fact as well as on paper," reads one resolution adopted. "We demand that disabled ex-service men be examined by local physicians empowered to make physical examinations . . . to adjudicate their claim, to render medical and surgical treatment . . . and to authorize necessary hospitalization in all disabilities, excepting insanity, in the town of their residence or in the reasonable immediate vicinity of their homes . . ."

The demand was also made that Lincoln be restored to a parity with other cities in the state so as to offices of the Veterans Bureau, as it is the capital of the state, free office room is available, and the state university is the principal training center for vocational students.

Brigadier-General Sawyer came in for some pointed criticism, for his alleged interference with the hospital program, and the demands were made that the Veterans Bureau use only ex-service persons in its personnel, and discontinue the use of its funds and efforts is disseminating false propaganda creating false impressions concerning the rehabilitation of ex-service men."

Still for Language Law.

The American Legion's stand on the Reed-Norval, or American language law was again stated in a resolution asking full enforcement of the statute by the law enforcement officers and state superintendent, and calling on the attorney general to use every possible effort to have the law upheld.

Recent activities of American Legion men in politics called for a strong statement of the order's position and the resolution adopted calls attention to the Legions constitution, in which it is pledged to be non-political, and says: "We deplore and repudiate attempts which may have been made by members . . . or by any persons, publications or organizations, whether connected with the Legion or not, to evade the spirit and intent" of this clause, and "we declare that no person, or group of persons, or publication . . . has delivered or can deliver the vote of the American Legion to any partisan candidate for office, or any partisan cause, for the American Legion as an organization is dedicated to the support of policies rather than to partisan politics."

Other resolution on internal matters were introduced by Chairman J. E. Jacobson, and warmly supported by other members of he resolutions committee. E. B. Chappel. George Craven, Charles Reed. The post went into executive session to act on these.

At the beginning of the session gold past commander's badges were presented to E. B. Chappell and George W. Fawell, the first two full year heads of the Lincoln Legion. Guy C. Chambers made the presentation speech, and the old commanders were roundly cheered.

Dr. Czar Johnson called the attention of the members to a serious case in a local hospital. Thomas McCullough, a member of the Denver post, whose relatives live in England, is very ill at St. Elizabeth's hospital from wounds received in the service, and visits from his old buddies would aid in his recovery, he said.

A watermelon feed provided by Adjutant Kittinger and a committee closed the meeting which was attended by about 150 members.

Elect Post Delegation.

The election for delegates and alternates to the 8th Legion convention resulted as follows:

Delegates (twenty-six)—Commander E. G. Westover, Clarence Kittinger, Ernest Guenzel, Guy Chambers, Mason Wheeler, John Jacobson, Rev. DECLARES HE WAS TORTURED BY TWO

Alliance Shopman Charges Men Made Him Walk Barefooted Across Sandburrs.

Two of Alleged Assailants Placed On Trial in Federal Court at Omaha.

OMAHA, Aug. 29.—Blinfolded and barefooted, Richard Hurley, 27, Burlington shops employe at Alliance, Neb., walked with bleeding feet through patches of sandburrs, when he asserts, Victor L. Jackson and Harry Goss, two alleged strike sympathizers, kidnaped him in an automobile and tortured him in an effort to exact from him a promise not to return to work for the railroads as a shop employe.

Jackson and Goss were tried in federal court Monday on a charge of violating Federal Judge Woodrough's injunction against striking railroad employes.

According to Hurley's story, he was surrounded Wednesday afternoon in front of the postoffice in Alliance by a crowd of strike sympathizers who called an automobile which he was forced to enter. With Jackson and Goss as his captors, he says, he was taken to a pasture twenty-five miles from Alliance, blindfolded, his shoes and socks removed, and led through patches of sandburrs until his feet were thickly matted with burrs.

"They robbed me of a Burlington pay check identification slip for $20 and threw me in a shallow pool of water, knocking me down when I attempted to scramble out," Hurley declared.

"After beating and threatening me, and attempting to make me promise not to go back to work for the railroad, they drove away taking my shoes and socks with them. I had to walk through three quarters of a mile of sandburrs, with my feet swollen and lacerated, until I met a threshing gang who gave me a pair of shoes and took me to a point where I could get a ride back to Alliance.

"There I received medical attention."

Jackson and Goss were arrested Wednesday afternoon on Hurley's complaint and were brought to Omaha Monday for trial by United States Deputy Marshal L. O. Toland.

After evidence for the prosecution had been heard Monday afternoon, the case was continued until Tuesday to give the defense opportunity to secure its witnesses.

SEE MYSTERY IN DEATH OF YOUTH

Officers Investigating Finding of Body of Dewey Lewis Near Julian.

JULIAN Neb., Aug. 29.—Did Dewey Lewis, 24, of Prairie, whose body was found beside the railway tracks south of Julian Monday, meet his death in an accident while attempting to ride a train or did he meet with foul play? This is the question that county officials are seeking to clear up, and an investigation is being made.

Some of the officials incline to believe that young Lewis was killed in a train accident, but others point to the fact that the body was not badly mutilated, and hint that there may have been foul play. Lewis' neck was broken and a small gash crossed the back of his neck.

It has been ascertained that Lewis and a party of his friends went auto riding Sunday night. The machine was wrecked near Julian early in the morning and the party went to the Julian station to sleep until a train arrived.

JUDGE PERRY IS SELECTED HEAD OF COMMITTEE

New Chairman Defends State Expenditures Under the Code System.

Announces Headquarters to Be Opened Soon in Lincoln.

Candidates on the republican state ticket, who dictated the platform at the state convention two weeks ago, were permitted by the new state committee at its first meeting last evening virtually to select the chairman of that body, and they recommended Judge E. B. Perry of Lincoln, who was elected without opposition.

T. H. Reasoner of Hastings, grain dealer, was made vice chairmar and W. A. Selleck of Lincoln, banker, was elected in the same way, at a joint conference of the candidates and a special committee named by C. A. McCloud, the retiring chairman.

The choice of a feminine vice chairman, a secretary for each sex, and an executive committee to comprise a man and a woman for each congressional ticket, was left to Chairman Perry. After the meeting Mr. Perry announced that state headquarters would be opened soon, probably in rooms at the Lindell hotel. E. C. Houston of Tekamah may be one of the secretaries.

"It was not nearly so cut and dried as I thought it was," declared Mrs. Draper Smith of Omaha, a member of the committee which conferred with the candidates and recommended the three officers who were chosen. She said the conference arrived at its conclusions without calling any outsiders over the telephone. The other members of the special committee were A. J. Jenison of Harvard, chairman, and Mrs. H. B. Cornelius of Hastings.

Sidesteps 1924 Senate Contest

In assuming the gavel, Chairman Perry took occasion to disavow any purpose of using the g. o. p. organization for or against any candidates in 1924. His candidacy was supported by Phil Bross and other members of the present state administration with the supposed object of getting someone at the head of the state committee who would be friendly to Governor McKelvie for United States senator two year hence, as against Attorney General Davis.

Judge Perry made a short talk in which he defended state expenditures under the code system and claimed there could be no reduction in state taxes without stopping highway construction, abandoning work on the new capitol, or crippling education. The republicans, he said, should meet the democratic slogan of "Look at your tax receipts" by explaining to the voters what the money they pay into the state treasury goes for.

Five candidates on the state ticket were present, and Chairman McCloud before giving up the gavel presented them individually to the meeting. They were C. H. Randall for governor, Fred Johnson for lieutenant governor, Crawford Kennedy for secretary of state, George W. Marsh for auditor, and O. S. Spillman for attorney general. Mr. Spillman spoke on behalf of all the candidates.

Walter L. Anderson and R. H. Thorpe, candidates for the long and short term for congress in the First district, also addressed the committee and several of its members spoke briefly.

Urges Support of Party Press.

Mr. McCloud asked everyone present to boost state and local newspapers that are supporting republican candidates.

"Don't stop by subscribing for them yourself," he said, "but go out and get others to do the same. The newspapers are a very valuable factor in a campaign, and they will be of great assistance in meeting the opposition attack."

As it was a hot evening, Walt Anderson sent in a big box of fans which were distributed among the committee members and other party workers at the meeting. The fans bore the advertising imprint of a well known undertaking firm.

There were more women members of the state committee in attendance than men. Mrs. Rosalia Condon of Pawnee City, made in speech in which she declared that "republicanism is part of my religion."

Committee vacancies for the 32nd senatorial district were filled by the election of Earl D. Meyer, Alliance, and Mrs. Elizabeth L. Smith, Chadron.

Spent Over $24,000.

Expenditures of more than $24,000 in the republican state campaign of two years ago and for minor items since then were reported by T. L. Mathews of Fremont, the retiring treasurer, who said he had kept books showing where every bit of the money went. He did not disclose any of this information, however.

A cash balance of $591 was reported on hand at the present time with card subscriptions for $705 more which have not yet been paid.

The financial report was approved and the thanks of the committee were extended to Mr. Mathews. A vote of appreciation for Chairman McCloud's services was also adopted.

R. B. Howell, nominee for United States senator, was absent as were C. D. Robinson for treasurer, Dan Swanson for land commissioner, and C. A. Randall for railway commissioner.

VOTERS TO POLLS ON PACIFIC COAST

Battle of Ballots On In California With Senatorship the Stake.

State Officials Also In Race —Primary One of Hottest In Years.

(Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29.—Generally fair weather, a record registration and a sharply contested race, for an important nomination were the factors combining today to indicate a heavy vote in California's primaries. The posts for which nominations are to be made comprise everything from United States senator to justice of the peace inclusive.

The registration is overwhelmingly republican, 927,744 persons—a plurality in every county and a majority in most—having signified their allegiance to that party. The recorded democratic strength was 347,655, the socialist 22,511 and the prohibitionist 21,259. Those who declined to state their political preferences when registering, numbered 178,799, and the remainder of the total of 1,452,392 were classed as "miscellaneous" in the official record.

The contest attracting chief interest is that between Hiram Johnson, incumbent, and C. C. Moore, for the republican nomination for senator. Upton Sinclair, writer, is unopposed for the socialist senatorial nomination and the democrats also have a candidate in the field without opposition. The race for the republican gubernatorial nomination for the lieutenant governorship on the same ticket, also are receiving much interest. These were contested vigorously by Governor William D. Stephens and F. W. Richardson, state treasurer, and C. C. Young, incumbent, and Joseph R. Knowland respectively. Matthew R. Jones, Los Angeles attorney and Thomas Lee Woolwine, district attorney for Los Angeles, are seeking the democratic gubernatorial nomination and Jones also seeks prohibition endorsement for the office. Alexander Herr of San Francisco is unopposed for the socialist nomination.

U. S. Webb, attorney general, and a republican, is the only candidate having things all his own way. He is the only candidate seeking nomination to succeed himself.

The polls open at 6 a. m. and close at 7 p. m.

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

Place of Honor.

Dear Minerva: What "fools these mortals be," but where lies the profit in attempting to reform them? Haven't sages and philosophers argued and debated every question and problem appertaining to fools since the dawn of human history? And haven't we the same questions and problems before us today? Why should we seek to reform anyone? Of course I do not assume that I am capable of reforming anyone—fact of the matter is, I need a little reformation myself—but this need will not prevent me from expressing a few of my personal views.

Young girls, scarcely in their teens, with tiny heads crammed with jazz and mush and gasoline are sporting and scoffing the nobler and loftier things of life to gratify an insatiable appetite for a glossy thing they deem to recognize as pleasure. The so-called modern girl would rather go flouncing and flirting down the widely advertised primrose path clinging to the arm of a cheap-souled he-scamp of the "midnight joy-ride type," than spend a decent hour in company with a man who has a holy regard for womanhood. These girls imagine out of the foolish treasures of their hearts that they are seeing what our giddy scenario writers label life. They coax themselves into believing by galloping over several thousand acres of forbidden territory in one night that they are doing the proper thing and should not be rebuked nor even by their parents. The mushy-hearted victim of a flapper who selects a floppy cigaret moocher from a battalion of his kind and lies off to the midnight play grounds with him to wear out shoes to the tunes of the latest jazz proclivity has the audacity to regard this wolf as an added Prince Charming because he knows how to beat a train to a crossing by a hair's breadth and can do all the dancing pavilion wiggles without any show of clumsiness. But he is not a Prince Charming. He's merely a human in the rawest, raw, ready to make much of her to his pals in the sanctity of some back street pool room, where the woman's honor is held sacred. Some girls pooh-pooh such talk, but I have heard fellows talk of their "sweeties," and the talk was rough enough to make a Monte Carlo courtier blush with shame. I have even known men to mention names when names should be held sacred. I have known men to "trade" girls. One a friend of mine. A well built man, cost $ four dollars. The deal was settled by A stepping aside and letting B take A's home during the absence of a fellow times to tell their little mush heads something they want to bawl him out. If he wants to be a decent sort of chap then quickly tell him to sneer one and all, first if he should mention church they'd laugh him plumb out of court. If he should mention God in their presence they would mock him without stint.

That is the attitude of girls in all her giddy newness and to say I hold her in utter contempt is merely expressing my fundamental beliefs in her new charms.

The man who wrote "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" got his wires crossed. He'd better lament for the wandering girl. Our wandering girls break more hearts, cause more tears to flow than an army division of wandering boys. The wandering boy is comparatively safe if he keeps clear of the wandering girl with her jazz heart and more leisure outlook on life to say nothing of the unchaperoned dance hall with its dim and shadowy lights.

Another fool we have to contend with is the married flirt. The married flirt, in my vocabulary is the half-witted female who'd rather be half-witted female who'd rather be half-witted female who'd rather be

AS OTHERS SEE US.

There is beyond all doubt too much complaining and too much lamenting about the weaknesses of our government and too little said about the virtues. It would not only benefit ourselves but others if we exchanged commissions, as has been suggested, with other countries, for the purpose of developing and improving our notions and conditions.

Krassin, the acting minister of foreign affairs in Russia, was doubtlessly speaking ironically, says the New York Times, when he stated that an American investigating committee would be admitted to Russia only on condition that a Russian investigating commission were allowed to visit America simultaneously. He is a trained engineer. He understands English and has been much outside of Russia, especially in England of late. When he was in London last year it was remarked that his clothes conformed to Bond Street style. He is doubtless even better acquainted with America than is Tchitcherin, who was described by an American traveler in Russia, when testifying recently before a congressional committee, as having at his elbow a pile of newspapers, on the top of which was exposed a New York daily with a reader's marks upon it. Krassin is not ignorant of America. He knows our worst, and he knows that our worst is not only our best but a long way from it.

As for the Russian people themselves, shut away from the rest of the world by an impenetrable wall, with no news except that which the government is pleased to permit them to hear, it would be enlightening if they could hear the report of a competent, disinterested investigating committee of their own selection. They would hear, to be sure, something of the sporadic rough mockeries of justice which we call lynchings, and of the occasional long delays in justice, lately decried by Chief Justice Taft. They would learn of widespread strikes, of stupidity or knavery in some high places, of hatred and rapine in some low places, of foibles and faults and vanities common to human kind. But they would find the great mass of citizens sober, religious, orderly, literate, industrious, self-supporting, individualistic, but with a highly developed social sense and with standards of material comfort never reached before by whole populations. And they would discover that the American radical who presented to the All-Russian Soviet congress the greetings of "a soon-to-be Soviet America," was either self-deceived or a downright deceiver of others. The true prophets of America are those who have gone with food, clothing and medicines to Russia.

If Russia would send an investigating committee to trace back to their sources in fields and homes and churches and schools and legislatures the gifts which those representatives have borne to the relief of Russia, she would more easily find the road to her own economic and moral recovery. America should welcome the inquiry. It would do both Russia and America good.

CLEARING FARM LAND.

The bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture, is making plans to release, for shipment to farmers this fall, millions of pounds of picric acid for agricultural explosive purposes, such as clearing lands of stumps, etc.

This distribution of high grade agricultural explosives to farmers by the government is to be without cost except seven cents per pound for drying and cartridging expense plus the cost of the freight, and is in the nature of a dividend on some of the expense of the war and the war taxes, inasmuch as this explosive is surplus war material which congress has directed shall be turned over to the farmers of the country.

Originally about 12,000,000 pounds of the picric acid was available as war surplus. A considerable amount was distributed to the states for road building purposes by the government and there now remains approximately 5,000,000 pounds to be distributed this fall. The bureau of public roads urges farmers in all sections of the country who can use this explosive to apply now for it, so that the fall shipping schedules may be made up for the states. The details of the methods of distribution can be secured from any state agricultural college and farmers who desire to obtain the explosive are urged to get in touch with these colleges and with the agricultural state extension services. Some of it is located at Fort Wingate, New Mexico, and an additional supply, for shipment to eastern points, is located at Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland.

Picric acid is a comparatively safe explosive and is used in the same way that other agricultural explosives are used. It has several advantages over commercial explosives, in that it keeps indefinitely, without deteriorating, it is not affected by heat or cold, and it does not cause headaches, or other ill effects, when used in the open air. Because of its greater cost of manufacture, it is not a competitor with commercial dynamite. It is being distributed for the purpose of increasing interest and activity in land clearing.

The Minnesota state agricultural college reports: "We feel that picric acid has been a great benefit to the state, and has done a great deal to stimulate land clearing. All reports are to the effect that its use has been highly satisfactory. The 744,000 pounds allotted to Minnesota last year was distributed to 3,511 farmers, averaging 222 pounds to the farmer. We estimate this will clear 35,000 acres of land, and has made a saving of over $70,000, for the farmers of the state."

BETTER CROP PRICES AND BETTER TIMES.

With the exception of the settlement of the chaotic conditions in Europe, the increased purchasing power of the American farmer will do more to bring about stable conditions in this country than anything else. Prices of farm products are generally higher now than a year ago and the effect of bountiful crops and fair prices this year will have a welcome effect on the agricultural communities.

The movement of prices in general continues upward. The index of wholesale prices issued by the bureau of labor statistics was 2.51 per cent higher for July than for June, and June prices in turn were 1.35 per cent higher than for the previous month. As compared with July a year ago the general increase was 16 per cent. The largest increase was in the index of fuel and lighting. These prices were nearly 18 per cent higher in July than in June, and 66.5 per cent higher than in July, 1921. Farm products, which show the next largest increase, were 3.05 per cent higher than in June, and 13.44 per cent higher than in July, 1921.

Recent wage advances, particularly the increases announced by the United States Steel corporation and other steel companies, are especially significant at this time, says the Guaranty Survey. This would seem to indicate expectation of possible labor shortage and the continued upward movement of prices for some time. They will undoubtedly strengthen also the belief that the present progress of industry in general has substantial foundations.

Reports for four weeks of July show that 3,300,080 freight cars were loaded, as compared with 3,461,000 for four weeks of June, although an increase due to the movement of the new wheat crop ordinarily would have brought a gain in car loadings. In spite of the strike, however, the July movement this year was 10 per cent ahead of that for July a year ago, when the wheat movement was heavy and there was no interference with normal transportation and distribution. If coal loadings be excluded, the comparison with last year's freight loadings is much more favorable.

By the way, did anyone ever hear of a parrot that didn't swear? At any rate, there would be nothing written about them if it were not for their profanity.

"I think I am a gentleman," says Senator Tom Watson, and the Minneapolis Journal remarks that many men held in asylums think they are millionaires

"When the corn is in the shock" this fall will be nothing compared to the joy of hearing the coalrattle down the chute into the cellar.

PASSING THE HAT FOR JUSTICE.

They are passing the hat for justice in Illinois. Public justice having broken down in the twentieth century and in one of the greatest states of the nation, the citizens are compelled to fall back on private justice. Government being helpless, or unwilling, or afraid, or incompetent to perform the first of its functions—that of administering justice—society in that state has had to recall its delegated powers and act to protect itself.

What has government in Illinois to say to this? What has government in America to say to a "Herrin Week" drive for funds to prosecute murderers immune from public justice? The hat is being passed for dimes "to prove to "the world that the good citizens of Illinois are united in a determination to uphold law and order." But what else does it prove to the world?

What else, but that law and order have ceased to be the concern of government or have passed beyond its power of control?

Government that is supposed to be the agency of good citizens in upholding law and order has failed. When the power to administer justice passes from it what is left of government but a legend? To this timid wrath of democracy the citizens of Illinois have been paying taxes. To them it was the state, the collective power of the whole citizenship, the majesty of the law, the sword of justice, the protector and avenger of society. On no other theory have they maintained it, obeyed it, paid tribute to it. They gave it the public voice and the public purse and the public conscience to speak and administer and invoke in the public name.

And what has been its stewardship? When murders are done that shock and shame the nation, this sovereignty of a people, this protector of a commonwealth, shrinks back into the shadows of its once proud battlements and is neither seen nor heard. If the people of Illinois want justice done on murderers they can form a vigilance committee, a posse comitatus, and execute it themselves. If it takes money they can collect it themselves. If it requires leaders they can find them where they can. The state, the government, the organized power of the people that takes the taxes and pays executives and administrators, washes its hands of justice.

Is not this becoming typical of democracy's government in America? Here is only one other surrender of which we have seen so many in nation, state and city. Here, too, we see the formation of another bloc, also typical of the growing distinctions of class and interest in America. Here is a law-enforcing bloc formed against one created for lawlessness. Just as occupations, business interests, races, have divided off from the mass to seek in organization each its own end, so now we have a bloc formed to uphold law in a great state where the constituted authorities have failed to uphold it. A bloc formed in protest not only against lawlessness but against the incapacity of government.

A significant thing. A thing for Americans to reflect upon, for the bloc everywhere and for whatever purpose formed, is significant of the inability of government to hold the elements of the nation's life together. It means that as a nation we no longer have unity of a purpose or interest. Every class is out to protect itself. The purpose of some is good and that of others is bad, but all are alike in testifying to the breakdown of vigorous, unifying and effective government in America.

Are we ready as a nation to accept the conclusion society has come to in Illinois? If citizens must band together and raise funds by private subscription before a trial of criminals can be held, what American can say democracy and law rule in his country, that justice is free or government supreme? What is our America in that case but a land where only the powerful and the ruthless can make their will felt, where society is without public security and life and property dependent only upon individual or bloc ability to defend them? If we are forced today to pass the hat for justice we will be forced tomorrow to pass it for government itself. If government has become too weak today to administer justice for its citizens, how long will it be before it is too weak to defend itself?

Neither Illinois nor the nation can make these compromises with violence and anarchy and long exist as organized societies. The government that abandons or delegates its powers to a private or volunteer authority is doomed. Shall democracy in America live or perish? If it lives it must be master in its own house and make and execute its own laws.—Kansas City Times.

REFORM IN CHURCH BUILDING.

Plain truths about modern church architecture are plainly spoken in a report which is to be presented at Portland, Ore., before the general convention of the Episcopal church. "Paying for an altar, a window or a rood screen," it says, "does not give the donor the right to impose his own taste upon posterity." Nor are the authorities as at present constituted a sufficient tribunal. "Esthetic infallibility," the report proceeds imperturbably, "does not inhere in a bishop." Among the members of the committee that signed these irreverent words one finds the vicar of the Chapel of the Intercession, also Mr. Charles Steele and the architects Bertram Goodhue and Ralph Adams Cram. Episcopal churches are presumably no worse than others, but a study of 2,500 of them has convinced the committee that "in all parts of the country millions of money have been unwisely spent."

Clearly the time has come to apply the new principles of self-government to the building of churches. What is needed is not so much a personal dictator—a pictorial Judge Landis, an architectural Will Hays or a sculpturesque Augustus Thomas—as a commission of churchmen and architects that shall improve the taste of the donor, curb the artistic hospitality of wardens and vestry, even direct the feet of the bishop in the way they should go. Hitherto, folk who have been properly brought up have thought it incumbent upon them not to say out loud what they think, by and large, of church architecture. But, backed by the authority of this report, they may now express a hope that in the future a pair of too-aspiring spires shall not give the rude populace occasion to dub the edifice behind them the Church of the Holy Toothpicks; that a sculptured Gabriel, overflamboyant with his trump, shall not suggest to the ungodly a Church of the Holy Bean Blower.

Ecclesiastical building presents real difficulties. Many of our most modern churches, if they faithfully expressed their character in stone, would lean on several sides toward the amusement centre, the lecture hall, the settlement house. A sly attempt was made in this direction by Messrs. Goodhue and Cram when they adorned the portal of St. Thomas's, frequented by fashionable weddings, with monocled Fifth Avenue fops and love-knots entwining dollar signs. As members of a commission for enlightening the bishop, how far would they carry this conception?

For the present their mood is sobriety itself. They propose that the curriculum of theological schools shall include a course in church architecture and that a handbook shall be prepared for the use of such commissions as may be established. Of late years church building has distinctly improved and competent supervision should accelerate the progress.—New York Times.

WHY HAS AUGUST 31 DAYS?

(From Le Petit Parisien, Paris.)

Why have July and August thirty-one days apiece, while poor old February has only twenty-eight, or, at the most, twenty-nine?

The vanity and jealousy of emperors explains this peculiarity. In the Julian calendar February used to have twenty-nine days for the common years and thirty for leap years. The other months alternated regularly, one with thirty, the next with thirty-one days.

Now Caesar's first name, Julius, has been given to the seventh month, and when the Emperor Augustus decided to have a month of his own he made up his mind that certainly it should have no fewer days than July, which was Caesar's.

Consequently, they cut another day off February in order to give Augustus his thirty-one and then rearranged the sequence of strong and weak months after August; otherwise there would have been three successive months—July, August and September—each with thirty-one days.

This is the explanation given by an Italian review, without documentary evidence.

Two Hours With a Caterpillar

BY GARRETT P SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

Are the lower animals only ingenious machines, driven by physical and chemical energies and reactions, or are they conscious creatures, aware of their needs and of their simple doings, and possessing senses suitable to their walk of life and more or less under voluntary control? It is an interesting question, but I do not undertake to answer it; I only offer the following true story.

About 4 o'clock on the afternoon of July 28 I was reading "The Tempest," while seated on a rock on the stony western shore of Lake Champlain, at Cliff Haven, N. Y., when my attention was attracted to a large yellow-brown, bristly caterpillar crawling rapidly over a stone near me, bound, as I afterward particularly took notice, on a west-by-north course.

My first instinct was to put an end to the caterpillar as a potential enemy of mankind. My second thought had more of the unintending malice of a boy. I let the creature crawl upon my cane and then flung it toward the lake. But it escaped a test of its swimming powers by dropping just at the edge of the water.

Falling on its hirsute back was like tumbling in a bed of down, and quickly it squirmed onto its rows of feet and hastened over the pebbles, first steering away from the water and then taking the same sloping direction with reference to the line of the shore that it had been following at first. It had the air of knowing where it wanted to go and of being in a hurry to get there so I dropped Shakespeare for the "movies" as represented by this silent actor, whose long, undulating form moved like a flexible train, the head being often on the top of a small stone when the tail was just leaving the hollow behind.

I watched it and followed it, sitting down from time to time on a rock to see it pass. It had a rough way before it, and its scramblings recalled the old song, "Jordan am a hard road to trabble."

It laboriously climbed rocks that were as large to it as houses, or even as precipitous hills to a human being. Yet on it kept, west-by-north only temporarily wandering amid the crookedness of that intricate landscape. The only thing that ever kept it long from its apparently predetermined course was the temptation to follow every high stone or boulder to its topmost point. But whenever the going was nearly level and unobstructed, westward the mystic star of empire led it on, with always that northward trend. It was the way of the declining sun; was that its compass?

I became deeply interested in the adventures of this humble crawler through the wildness of its little world. I was almost tempted to speak to it, to see if I might not startle it and cause it to look up, as we would do if Mars should call to us with hollow voice from the sky. What I really did was to occasionally turn a flat stone that it was traversing half way round, or to force it off its course with my cane; but always it got back again to the true direction. I have noticed this peculiarity of caterpillars before. They seem to get a direction in their heads and obstinately stick to it.

That it had something like memory seemed to be indicated by the unquestionable fact that after I had interfered with it a number of times its periods of rolling itself into a circle and playing 'possum greatly increased in length, until they became so long that at last I kept my hands off from fear of stopping the show entirely. I thought, too, that the caterpillar gradually became "nervous," and more quickly responded to the warning vibration made by my feet or cane among the pebbles. At first it had paid no attention to such disturbances.

Its most "human-like" conduct was exhibited whenever it reached the steep edge of a lofty elevation over which it had been crawling and stretched its head and the front quarter, or third, of its body inquiringly over the abyss, reaching and exploring this way and that, feeling up and feeling down, for a foothold, and finally choosing a way. Sometimes it got a big tumble, for somewhat to my surprise its feet did not appear to get a very firm hold on the surface of smooth stones.

It is no exaggeration to say that it had exciting adventures. Once it got itself entangled for a quarter of an hour in a cobweb stretched under the lee of a large stone. It fought its way out and then managed to get in again three times, for no other reason that I could see than that that stone with its enveloping net lay on that mysterious west-by-north course that it was bound to follow. If there was a spider owning the web he did not appear. Perhaps he felt like the Elector Maurice when he refrained from capturing Emperor Charles V., because he had "no cage big enough for such a bird."

However—and I wish I had space to describe it—my caterpillar in his wanderings got up on what I dubbed "Spider Rock," and didn't get down again till I helped him, for every time he ventured over the verge on one side or another a spider, whose outlying lines he had touched, darted at him, and then darted back again. I cannot say that the spiders hurt or daunted the wanderer, but at any rate he crossed the rock from side to side a dozen times, never venturing down into the spider-haunted caverns until I got him on my cane and lifted him off. I followed and watched him altogether two hours, and when I left him, at supper time, he was still headed west-by-north.

OLD BOOK IN NEW COVERS

(Portland Oregonian)

Since Walton wrote his "Compleat Angler," near to thre centuries ago, no book for fisherman has been quite so well beloved as William Scrope's "Days and Nights of Salmon Fishing," which first appeared in 1843 and is now reprinted in an American edition. Here too, was an Englishman who took the gentle sport so deeply to heart that he wrote well concerning it—not as a killer of fish, but as one who loved their mystery and the broad panarama of their pursuit. The work has often been referred to as a classic, and would bear reading by many men who never wet a line; yet the truth is that in America but a few fishermen and a few booklovers have ever heard of it or traced a lingering eye over its scholarly pleasant chapters.

What additions to our lore of fishes we might not have, what insight, what information of sound economic value, if every wight in waders fished as Scrope fished his well-loved Tweed! For it is apparent that to this man, as to few others we owe the modern scientific interest in salmon and the methods that perpetuate the several species. He seems never to have been content to call a fish a fish, but to insist upon knowing whence it came and why and how it deposited its eggs, and in what manner they were impregnated and in identifying the infants. In his day the tiny salmon fry, or parrs, were held throughout Scotland to be adult minnows of a common variety, not in any way related to the great salmon that swarmed the streams. Boys and crude anglers caught them in enormous numbers, as you might catch them today in any costal river of Oregon—did not knowledge and the law forbid. Scrope identified the parr.

Though the salmon of Scotland is not the salmon of the Pacific those who know our fish—Chinook and blueback—will think themselves on an Oregon stream when they read Scrope. He traced the life history of the titan of the salmon-idea so minutely and with such sympathy that his observations are easily recognizable from our own experience. And he had a hand, which is of interest to the Pacific northwest, in the first hatchery experiments.

The English angler did not subscribe to the theory that all salmon die after spawning, their life cycle rounded, their destiny complete. Of course, his observations of a different species do not contradict the findings of American icchthyologists, who hold the Pacific coast salmon invariably die after mating and never again taste the tang of salt water. But in view of the lingering doubt among laymen his statements in this respect, though with regard to Scottish salmon, are intriging. He held, as close observer, that while many spawned salmon did die, numbers returned to the sea and were healed of their weakness. He found that occasional salmon spawned twice and even thrice.

An argued subject on the Pacific coast is whether some salmon do return to salt water, thus permitting the disparity in weight, so frequently noted, or whether one and all succumb near the wedlock riffles. Dr. David Starr Jordan, whose word on the salomidae is scientifically accepted as final declares that spawned salmon are comparable to a cornstalk that has born its grain. "The essence of life has been drawn from them, and recovery is impossible. Scrope observed that spawned salmon congregated in deep pools and awaited a spate, or freshet, which carried them down to the sea. Any observer of salmon in Oregon streams has also seen the schooling of spent almon after spawning and has likewise reflected upon the fact that the first heavy rain and rise of the river sweeps the depths of their tenantry. Yesterday they were there weakened and thin from their fast, but yet vigorous. Today they have been borne away with the flooding river. Whither?

Does it not seem possible that Oregon salmon like those of Scotland, sometimes find their ocean again and drink health from it?

"The position of the kelt, or spent salmon," says H. T. Sheringham, angling editor of The Field, who edited the reprint, seem to be raised. Is the kelt worthy preserving? The answer to this is wes, because there is always the chance that it may reutrn to sea, recover its condition, and return to the river to spawn again. A considerable number of salmon, especially of the male fish, die after the exertions of spawning, and it is probably that of those who do not die a fair proportion will spawn again."

Controversy, however, is not in keeping with the spirit of Scrope, who made his discoveries for the love he bore the river gods, and whose modest boast was that he had been a squire of trouts and had taken to salmon when the time for his knighthood arrived. "We leave you," said he, at fluis, "to the glorious works of the Creation, whether it may be your pleasure to go forth when the spring sheds its flowery fragrance, or in the more advanced season, when the sere leaf is shed incessantly and wafted on the surface of the swollen river."

"Have you any Scotch in you?" asked the man interested in genealogy.

"No, but I would be glad to if you have any," replied the man who was interested in spirits.—Brooklyn Eagle.

LINCOLN STREETS IN GOOD SHAPE FOR STATE FAIR

Program of Improvements Pushed Through by Commissioner Bryan.

Resurfacing Work Speeded Up—Big Jobs Will Be Finished by Monday.

The activity of the department of streets and public improvements has been cosiderably increased during the past two weeks under pressure applied to paving contractors and railroad offices by Commissioner C. W. Bryan who has pushed through a program of improvements in time to make them of benefit to state fair visitors.

Mr Bryan met with the paving contractors a few days ago and delivered an ultimatum to them that unless the resurfacing and repaving work ordered on the down town streets was completed at the earliest possible date and in time for the fair, that he would refuse to sign any additional paving ordinances ordering paving laid in outlying districts.

As a result of this, the resurfacing work was speeded up during the past week and L street from Ninth to Sixteenth is completed. Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets from N to O are being resurfaced now and it is possible that the resurfacing of P and streets, both big jobs, will be completed by next Monday when the fair opens.

Second Approach to Fair.

East O street is now completed and the pavement there is in good. North Twenty-seventh is likewise completed and that main approach into the city is as smooth as the day the paving was first laid. The [illegible] on North Fourteenth which Mr. Bryan hoped to pave this summer, which was delayed because the Traction company could not get rails and ties, has been ordered and when it makes a satisfactory showing to the fair grounds. The Missouri Pacific is laying its new passenger depot on Seventeenth. Twenty-first, Twenty-second and Twenty-seventh, the first and last being completed and the other two planned for completion, following Mr. Bryan's orders.

The paving contract is embodied to the street department and that they were unable to get enough stone chips for their [illegible] on the railroad strike. This, stated with Mr. Bryan, however, is not the case and now that the Missouri, and the result is that [illegible] cars of crushed stone is now on the way to Lincoln to be divided among the paving contractors.

Mr. Bryan has given his decision final notice to the Rock Island road to pave the approaches to the Holdrege street viaduct this summer. Street crossings on Holdrege street to extend the curb line to the pavement for the railroad and viaduct the cost to the corporation. The buckering over the height of the viaduct has delayed this but the commissioner announced to the council Monday that he would order the paving put in next week if the railroad did not act before that.

North North street is being repaved and Northwestern company which wishes to move its tracks across that street has been notified to do so immediately.

Test Holdrege Pavement.

A second test is now being made of the base of the pavement of east Holdrege street. The first test made on the part of the improvement for which the contractor was required to put up a $1,000 bond, was unsatisfactory, according to Mr. Bryan and the city may require part of the street to be repaved. As a result Mr. Bryan is going to ask the city to amend the paving specifications calling for greater strength, not as well as the quality and inspection bonds so that the city and property owners will always be protected against paving that does not set properly and such as should be it could be.

Sticks to Story Girl Was Killed By Stove's Blast

GREELEY, Col., Aug. 29.—Albert J. Lowe, held in jail here in connection with the mysterious death of his sister-in-law, Miss Ethel F. Skinner, was unshaken today in his claim of innocence when told of dispatches from Bloomington, Ill., stating that an investigation yesterday of the charred body of Miss Skinner disclosed that her skull had been fractured.

Lowe still held to his story that the girl had been killed by the explosion of a stove which caused a fire in the Lowe house.

When a Girl Marries

CHAPTER 733.

Tony whisked me over to Betty's apartment. Leaving Lyons to see to the transportation of luggage, he escorted me up to my new home, with an air of formality that puzzled me. I couldn't figure out Tony's precise reaction toward my move, nor yet how he felt it likely to affect his status in regard to Betty and Carlotta. So I gave up puzzling over it with a half humorous remembrance of a quotation that Jim used to fling at me when he found me in what he called my Mrs. Fix-It mood:

"This knot is too hard for me to untie. Thou must unravel it, Time, and not I."

Betty herself opened the door to her apartment. She was a flushed and almost normal-looking Betty, with a ruffled white apron tied about her waist and relieving the sombreness of her black dress.

"Welcome!" she cried, reaching out with a fervor that showed Betty at least was clear in her mind as to the rightness of my coming to live with her.

I felt Betty's lips against my cheek and then her head went down against mine. When she lifted it her eyes were starry.

"I have a true friend," she said, simply and proudly. There was a momentary flash of something in her manner that made me feel as if I had recaptured the old Betty of gayer and happier days.

"Tony, will you go out and baste the chicken while I take Anne to her room? I like the idea of—the formal touch."

"To the chicken?" asked Tony, stripping off his overcoat and starting kitchenward in the midst of our relieved laughter.

When Betty and I arrived at the room she had assigned me, I found it a bower of great fragrant red roses. No one ever gave me red roses before and yet their warm sweetness seemed suddenly the one thing I needed to make this strange new room livable.

"Aren't they—right?" asked Betty. I thought your face would light up when you saw them. Here is an envelope that came with them."

I opened the envelope and found it inscribed:

"To a woman who knows what friendship means. To the venture in home making that doesn't daunt her courage. From Aunt May and the nephews."

My eyes were wet, but my heart was warm as I gave the card to Betty, and did a bit of explaining while I removed outer garments and tidied myself a bit.

Miss May is my little partner, you know Ralph Lacy—our loyal helper and the advertising manager of the Star. He and his pal, Wayne Parkinson, adopted Miss May as an aunt. She adores those boys, and—I don't blame her. They're splendid."

"I know they are," said Betty simply. "Mr Lacy telephoned and exclaimed about the flowers. He asked me if I had plenty of vases or if I'd like a few bowls sent up. He was so charming that I asked him to supper. So he's bringing Miss May and Mr Parkinson. I didn't want your first evening to be dreary Anne — I think you're a brave fine woman, and I promise I won't make things harder for you—"

Suddenly then Betty fled, her words dying on her lips. For a moment I thought she had been trying to promise that she wouldn't make things any harder for me than she could help. Then I realized that she had been thinking of me, not of herself as she spoke. Trying to shake off the depression that his concern for me is beginning to cause me, I rummaged about until I found an apron in the little bag I'd carried. Then I went out to do my share toward preparing supper.

I was reminded of the old days when Betty used to come down to my studio apartment Jim and I sublet from Tom Mason. It made me ache for those days with an ache of loneliness that told me how terrible the emptiness of Betty's heart must be. But her longing can never be assuaged, and no matter how hard it is to wait for Jim, I know he's coming back to me some day. The thoughts that found their way into my mind as I was setting the table, made me very tender toward Betty. And she, too, seemed to be in a mood of great gentleness.

Neither of us put anything into words. Yet I felt that Betty also was remembering the long ago days when Jim and I were poor and happy and—together, and when she had not yet permitted Terry Winston to mean everything to her.

We were still in a flurry of preparation in which Tony was taking his part, when the door bell rang.

"Please, Anne, it's your job to be maid now," smiled Betty, as gallant as if this weren't the first time in her life she's been too poor to afford a maid.

I went to the door to find Aunt May, rosy with delight and flanked by her two sturdy cavaliers each of whom bore a large package.

"Welcome to our city!" cried Park, dancing a little jig around Miss May, who dropped all office formality and hugged me with a right good will. "I've an extra special appetite with me, so if you'll take me out and introduce me to the lady cook, I'll elect myself assistant and help prepare the viands we're brought to this package party."

With a cheerful awareness that all this picnic casualness would be good for Betty, I led the way right out to the kitchen and performed introductions and doled out aprons and tasks almost in a breath. Miss May seemed almost awe-struck at Betty's regal beauty, which showed through her gauntness for the first time since her sad return. And Betty was warmed and pleased by the admiration in every move the little wisp of a woman made.

In the midst of all our cozy exclaiming over the mince pies and rolls Park had brought and chatted on heating in the oven and the crisp nuts and celery and olives which were Ralph Lacy's contribution, the telephone rang. Betty cut off to answer it and was quite long enough for us to wonder for whom she was a wonder and to give the chicken its last basting.

"I'm glad that chicken weighs an even six pounds," she cried suddenly from the doorway, "for I've added a guest to our list. It was Miss Storrs on the wire, Anne. She phoned the Sturges home about something very important she wanted to go into with you, and they told her to call you here. I liked her voice, so I asked her to jump into a taxi and come to get housewarming."

"Is she coming?" asked Park, with an anxiousness that verged on the comical.

"I wouldn't let her say no!" smiled Betty.

"Did you tell her I was here and was she pleased?" asked Park, with the greatest seriousness imaginable.

"I held you out for a surprise," laughed Betty and her response to his boyish eagerness made Tony and me exchange glances of delight.

"Say, if it's a regular party, you might let me run out and order ice cream," cried Park, with such simplicity that Betty couldn't object to the way he was making this his affair.

"Oh, it isn't a 'party'! It couldn't be!" gasped Betty. "I just wanted Anne's friends in to make it easy for her. But it seems sort of dreadful for me to be laughing and joking like this."

Something welled up in my throat and choked me. Tony, too, was utterly silenced. Quietly, then, Ralph Lacy took the helm.

"Say, Aunt May," he chuckled, "I've got a jealous disposition, and all that; but from the way you're looking at Mrs. Winston I see certain signs of pining for a niece. If Park's game I vote we take a cousin into our family group."

Betty smiled, wanly but gratefully.

Tony astonished me by looking put out, like an envious child.

France Considers Receivership For German Republic

PARIS, Aug. 29.—A receivership for Germany, along lines suggested by Sir John Bradbury, British representative on the interallied reparations commission, was considered by the French today. If the plan is approved an American may be proposed for receiver.

It was understood that Sir John Bradbury and M. Mauclere were given assurances on their recent trip of investigation to Berlin that Wilhelmstrasse would accept a receivership upon certain conditions one of which was that the receiver should be an impartial citizen.

It is reported that Chancellor Wirth suggested Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City bank in New York or some some other American banker as receiver. Mr. Vanderlip is in England at present.

Members of the interallied reparations commission today discussed informally the new proposals that Germany has made as the conditions for a moratorium. It is expected that the commission will not reach a definite decision upon the moratorium. It is expected that the commission will not reach a definite decision upon the moratorium before Wednesday.

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair by Washing It.

When you wash your child's hair be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water, and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

Miners Allege Contract Broken In Court Action

PUEBLO, Colo., Aug. 29.—Suit for damages against seventeen Colorado coal operators probably will be brought within a few days by District No. 15, United Mine Workers in an effort to collect between $300,000 and $500,000 in back pay alleged to be due the coal miners employed in those mines, according to Felix Pogleano, secretary of district No. 15. Mr. Pogleano claims the operators broke their contracts with the union several months before the contracts expired on April 1, 1922, and the men were forced to take a lesser wage for several months previous to April 1, when the contracts expired and the mine workers struck. The mine workers are basing their action along lines similar to a suit brought by garment workers in New York who sued the manufacturers for breach of contract and, according to Pogleano, were successful in obtaining back pay for the workers whose wages were cut before their agreements expired.

The wage cut was in violation of the agreement, Pogleano said, and the men struck. The strike did not last long, owing to national conditions, and the men returned to work under protest, he said.

Chinaman Sees Hammer Murder At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 29.—Discovery of a new eye witness to the slaying of Mrs. Alberta Tremaine Meadows, in connection with which Mrs. Clara Phillips awaits trial on a charge of murder, was announced today by William C. Doran, chief deputy district attorney.

The new witness, a Chinese vegetable peddler, told authorities a story of what he saw while he was driving his wagon along Montecito drive on the afternoon of July 12, when Mrs. Phillips is alleged to have persuaded Mrs. Meadows to accompany her to a secluded spot and beaten her to death with a hammer.

What the Chinese said he saw corroborated the story already told by Peggy Caffee, who is alleged to have been present when the hammer slaying took place.

Mrs. Caffee testified at the inquest in the case that Mrs. Phillips accused Mrs. Meadows of intimacy with her husband, and when Mrs. Meadows denied this, struck her with a hammer. Mrs. Meadows started to run, Mrs. Caffee said, but Mrs. Phillips pursued and caught her, then beat her to the ground with repeated blows.

Mrs. Phillips is to be tried beginning September 19.

Four Large Hard Coal Mines Work

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 29.—The Sherman, York, Farman and Rosenburg collieries were at work producing anthracite coal despite the creepy feeling imparted to the workers at the week-end when an army of strikers, with a flag at their head, closed down several collieries at St. Clair, near here. Some men are at St. Clair today and had scouts out to inform them in advance if marchers form to raid them.

Hot Time For Texas Negroes

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., Aug. 29.—A crowd of between 500 and 600 persons surrounded the combination city hall and jail at Electra, near here, last night, where John Love, 25, a negro held in connection with an attack on a white girl, is under guard of fifteen deputies.

After the arrest of the negro, a negro restaurant was burned. It is reported that firemen working to extinguish the flames were ordered by men in the crowd to cease their efforts.

An attempt was also made to burn the negro Baptist church.

BOXING COMMISH CRACKS DOWN ON SCHMADER'S MANAGER

SCHMADER'S PILOT CALLED BY DOYLE

Lewis Must Cancel Scrap at Aurora, Ill., or Stand Suspended at Home.

Failure of Jack Lewis of Omaha, manager for Andy Schmader, lightheavyweight boxer, to observe the rules adopted by the Nebraska boxing commission may prove expensive to both Lewis and his protege.

Schmader is under contract, signed by Lewis, to collide with Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul in the ten-round main event of the glove program dated for Wednesday night, Sept. 6, at Landis ball park in Lincoln.

Attetion of State Boxing Commissioner L. R. Doyle was scited today to the fact that a Schmader-Bob Martin bout, originally booked for early last week at Aurora, Ill., had been postponed to Friday night, Sept. 1.

The Aurora arrangement, whic' would provide for only five intervening days between Schmader's mills with Martin and Gibbons, constitutes a violation of Nebraska boxing regulations, according to Commissioner Doyle, who stated that the rule requires a lapse of six days between bouts and who proclaimed, in addition, that Manager Lewis must either cancel the Aurora engagement and live up to his contract to pit Schmader against Gibbons in Lincoln on Sept. 6, or go up against a Nebraska suspension which would include both Lewis and his fighter.

Demands Strict Enforcement.

"The Nebraska boxing commission has adopted rules for the supervision of glove sport in this state," Commissioner Doyle said, "and we intend to insist on strict enforcement. Lewis must cancel the Aurora affair and bring Schmader to Lincoln to . through with the Gibbons bout, ' stand suspended in Nebraska. I have given Lewis proper notice by long distance telephone of what to expect. I advised him to seek the counsel of Omaha friends and then call me later in the day, making known his choice But unless Lewis cancels th Schmader-Martin bout at Aurora, scheduled for Friday, I shall suspend both Lewis and Schmader from all connection with boxing in this state."

Predicts Lewis Will See Light.

Commissioner Doyle's firm stand for the Nebraska rules may knock out the Schmader-Gibbons bout in Lincoln, yet the commissioner predicted Tuesday noon that Lewis would see the light and call off the affair at Aurora, Ill., thereby making sure that Gibbons and Schmader will clash Sept. 6 at Landis Field, Lincoln as advertised.

The purpose of the six-day rule according to the Nebraska commissioner, is to make sure that an exponent of the glove sport may have ample time to recover from a previous bout and go into the ring in prime condition to do himself justice, while giving patrons of the sport a full run for their admission money. A lapse of but five days, the commissioner said, is not sufficient to conform to the rule.

MARTIN MARK FOR ITALIAN FIGHTER

Brooklyn Boxer Outclassed Johnny Dundee In Gotham Ring.

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Johnny Dundee, veteran Italian pugilist, successfully defended his "world junior lightweight" title last night, receiving the judges' decision after a fifteen-round contest with Vincent "Pepper" Martin of Brooklyn.

Martin was a willing fighter, but he was no match for Dundee's experience. The Italian was fast and he attacked the Brooklyn boy's head and body as he pleased. Dundee was never in danger.

Dundee entertained the crowd in the early rounds with his famous habit of bouding off the ropes and coming at his opponent with head down and full of fight. Invariably these tactics fooled Martin and he responded to punching exchanges in which he was worsted. Martin weighed 130 pounds and Dundee 124 3-4 pounds.

DAZZY'S CURVE STOPS RUSSELL

Pitcher Vance Throws Low Hook and Stops Rampage of Pirate Slugger.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29—Will a low curve ball, breaking across the outside corner of the plate, stop the batting rampage of Reb Russell, right fielder of the Pittsburgh Nationals—whose sensational comeback has helped win nearly a score of games for the Pirates?

Three times in yesterday's contest, Dazzy Vance, the Brooklyn right-handed twirler, disposed of Russell with his sharply breaking hook and, incidentally, batted 1.000 in the prophet's league, for at least one day.

"I'm telling you—that bird can't hit a low curve ball, and I'll prove it before this series is over," said Vance.

"I think that Vance mixed 'em too cleverly for Russell," said Manager Robinson to a representative of The Associated Press. "He used his fast ball very effectively with his low curve and had the Pittsburgh slugger guessing every minute."

Stands by Decree In Barring Von Elm

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The United States Golf association has refused to restore George Von Elm of Salt Lake City to his former status because of his arrangements with a sporting goods firm and "the manner in which he accepted payment of expenses." This decision will prevent his participation in the coming national amateur tournament at Brookline, Mass.

HASTINGS HURLER IS SOLD TO CARDS

Scout for St. Louis Club Puts Over Deal for Pitcher Wigington.

Scout Charley Barrett, talent hunter for the St. Louis Cardinals and purchaser of Pitchers Scott and Bailey from the Lincoln club, has bought the release of another Nebraska league ball player. Barrett notified the Lincoln management today that he had put over a deal with the Hastings club whereby Pitcher Wigington, husky, right-hander of the Cubs and leading strikeout hurler of the Miles circuit, is to report to the Cardinals for next year's spring training trip.

Price at which the Hastings management sold Wigington's release was not stated, but it is presumed that the deal is similar to the Scott-Bailey sales, the Cardinals to pay a nominal sum in binding the bargain and to follow with an additional amount in case the Hastings pitcher is retained after a stated date.

The Cardinal scout indicated today that he is interested in a deal for Bool, outfielder and substitute catcher for the Links, but no sale will be closed, the Lincoln management announced today, until Barrett boosts the amount offered for the player.

Touching the Bases.

In a gripping battle of right arms, Bob Shawkey turned back Urban Shocker and the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 1 in the final game of the big series for the American league leadership, placing the Yankees one and one-half games in front.

Vance was stopped on the threshold of scoring his seventh consecutive victory by a combination of Pirate hitting and Dodger errors, the Pirates pulling out a 4 to 3 victory in the eleventh inning.

The Macks and White Sox divided the spoils in a doubleheader. Hasty losing his own game in the first with a wild throw, 5 to 3, while the Athletics won the second game, 7 to 2.

U. S. SETS PACE IN GOLF CONTEST

American Amateurs Winners In Three of Four Matches With Britishers.

DOPE FAVORS AMERICANS.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 29.—American stars were heavy favorites to win the Walker cup, emblematic of international amateur golf supremacy, in the second day competition on the national links of America today.

Leading by three points to one as the result of their victories in three of the four Scotch foursomes played yesterday, the Americans had to win only half of the eight twosomes on today's program. Four victories would make Uncle Same triumph in the tournament by seven points to five and keep the cup at home.

The feature of today's program was the renewal of a battle of siege guns between Cyril J. H. Tolleyof England and Jesse Guilford of Boston, American amateur champion.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 29.—America's crack team of amateur golfers defeated the invading Englishmen yesterday in three of the four 36-hole Scotch foursomes, which opened the two days' play for the Walker cup international amateur golf team trophy.

Jesse Guilford and Francis Ouimet won 8 and 7 from the English team of Cyril J. H. Trolley and Bernard Darwin, while Charles ("Chick") Evans, jr., and Robert A. Gardner, Americans, were defeated by Roger H. Wethered and C. C. Aylmer of England, 5 and 4.

In the other two matches, Robert T. Jones and Jesse Sweetser vanquished W. B. Torrence and C. V. L. Hooman, 3 up and 2 to play, and Max R. Marston and W. C. Fownes, jr., beat the English combination of John Caven and W. Willis MacKenzie, 2 to 1.

The game presented by Guilford and Ouimet in defeating Tolley and Darwin bordered on the marvelous. The American pair pulled a number of breath-taking shots that offset the steady, accurate play of the Englishmen. The afternoon found the Americans went out in 34, three under par. They had five birdies in eleven.

Tolley was best of the four at driving. His drives in the morning round were always twenty to forty yards longer than those of Gunnet, who drove with him. Although Ouimet's afternoon shots, for the most part, were on a par with those of Tolley, Guilford always was ahead of Darwin.

(Special to The Star.)

STELLA, Neb., Aug. 29.—Verne Pugh of Stella was given a tryout with the Fairbury Coyotes early in the season and held under contract, subject to call at any time.

He joined the Coyotes the middle of this month and last Thursday pitched the entire game, hurling shutout ball for eight innings and winning, 8 to 2.

YANKEES JUMP IN FRONT OF BROWNS

New Yorkers Add to Lead In Flag Race By Winning Monday, 2 to 1.

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The New York Americans yesterday increased their lead over St. Louis to a game and a half by defeating the Browns in a thrilling eleven-inning pitchers' battle, 2 to 1. The victory gave the Yankees three out of the four-game series.

Shocker, who won the first game of the series, found a stubborn opponent in Bob Shawkey. Shawkey pitched one of the best games of his career and finally triumphed over his famous rival from St. Louis. The Yankee twirler yielded only four hits against eight of Shocker, although the St. Louis pitcher had better control. The only bases on balls issued by Shocker were two intentional passes to Schang. Shawkey walked seven men, one intentionally. New York scored the first run of the game in the second inning when Schang singled and scored on Ward's triple. Severeid tied the score in the fifth with a home run into the left field bleachers, the only extra base hit off Shawkey.

The game remained deadlocked until the eleventh, when Dugan led off with a single. Ruth fled to the infield, but Pipp's hot single past Sisler advanced Dugan to third. Schang was intentionally passed and Meusel drove out a sacrifice fly to Tobin and it was so deep that no effort was made to get Dugan at the plate. The game was perfectly fielded by both sides. Score by innings:

LINKS OUTLUCKED; LOSE TO NORFOLK

Elkhorns Had the Horseshoes and Bucks Dropped Game By 7 to 6 Score.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Pennant prospects of our Links were shot full of holes Monday afternoon at Landis Field. Although outbatting their rivals by a decisive margin, the home athletes were up against a combination of unlucky breaks and finished on the losing end in the second combat of the series with the league-leading Norfolk Elkhorns. The ultimate reckoning was 7 to 6.

The defeat offset the Sunday triumph and shoved the Links back to a point where they are trailing the Elkhorns by a margin of five games. To round out the second split season on even terms with the Elkhorns, the Links must cop the last game of the series today, clean up three in a row in the series with Hastings beginning Wednesday and follow through with five victories in the six final games at Norfolk starting Saturday. This calculation credits Norfolk with three successive triumphs in Grand Island, an accomplishment which most likely to materialize, in view of the present crippled state of t. Third City club.

Passes Factored in Defeat.

Reverting to the Monday tragedy, it must be chronicled that the generosity of Pitcher Harry Smith, on the slab for the Links, was a potent factor in the defeat. Smithy issued seven free passes to first and exuded on wild pitch. Three of his gifts eventuated into runs and the wild p. likewise played a part in the disaster. Smith held the Elkhorns to t... blows, while the Links hammered Lefty Didier for thirteen safe wallops As the fielding blunders were even one error for each club—the margin in the hitting in favor of the Links is conclusive evidence that the L. horns had all the breaks.

Muffed Foul Opens the Gate.

Catcher Conkey's misfortune in muffing a foul tip opened the gate to the scoring of four Norfolk runs in the second frame. Levi Knapp ... off with a safe drive which hit the second sack and bounced into the center garden back of the base. Clark sacrificed Levi to second, after which Smith four-balled Graves to first. Both runners advanced a base on Hegarty's out, Smith to McCoy. Didier fanned the air on two strikes and foul-tipped a third strike, which Conkey could not hold. Then the batter scratched a slow-bounding hit down the third base line. Knapp crossed the plate and Didier beat Zinker's throw to first. Graves moved to third on the play and Didier followed with a steal of second. Atherton got on by virtue of a free pass and Smith then perpetrated a wild pitch which scored Graves. Mitchell followed with a clean single to left, shoving Didier and Atherton home with another brace of markers. Mitchell was nailed for the third out on an attempted steal.

Links Get to Didier.

Although the Links mauled Didier for hits in the second, third and fourth frames, the home athletes did not break into the run column until the fifth. Smith inaugurated the latter round with a bingle to left. Spranger swung at a third strike, but Carig singled to right and Scott Dye smacked to the same garden for three bases, Smith and Carrig crossing the platter. The Links knotted the count in the sixth on Bool's hit, a walk to Zinker and a two-sacker by Spranger.

Norfolk smashed the tie in the eighth when Knapp circled the sacks on his second hit, which eluded McCoy, a steal of second, an infield out by Graves and a clean single to center by Hegarty. The Elkhorns jumped farther ahead in the ninth, scoring two runs on a walk to Atherton, a sacrifice by Mitchell, a single by Runt Marr, a double by Rouse and a sacrifice fly by Knapp.

Rally in Ninth Falls Short.

The Links were trailing to the extent of three scores when they t... their final turn at bat in the ninth Carrig, first up, walked to first on four balls. Dye delivered a pi... single to left and both runners advanced when Conkey groundored out, Mitchell to Hegarty. Husky Gibson's line single to center scored Car... and Dye. The tieing run was on t... bases, but it did not reach the goal as Bool hoisted a fly to Rouse in le... and Hegarty speared McCoy's hot grounder with his bare talon a... tagged first base for the third out.

The Hastings Cubs will invade the capital city Wednesday for a say three days. Monday's official record:

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.

Stock prices registered a substantial advance in today's market in recognition of improvement in the industrial situation. Gains of 1 to 5 points were scored by a number of active issues with another long array of stocks breaking to new high records for the year. Sales approximated 700,000 shares.

A strong tone prevailed at the opening of the New York stock exchange today reflecting the better prospects for peace in the anthracite fields and the more favorable industrial news. Steel stocks were in good demand, Crucible rising 2 points with smaller gains being recorded by United States Steel and some of the independent shares. Trading in rails was relatively light, slight fractional gains being the rule. Speculative favorites also moved to higher ground, Mexican Petroleum advancing 1¾, while substantial fractional gains were made by Baldwin and Studebaker. North American broke through to another high at a gain of 1¾ points, while gains of a point each were scored by American Smelting and Remington Typewriter. Coca Cola receded a point, presumably in response to speculative disappointment over the director's actions in not declaring an extra dividend.

Evidence of increasing confidence in both investment and speculative quarters was shown by the steady rise of most active shares during the forenoon. Crowding of the short interest in steels, equipments and oils resulted in some excellent gains when the bears began to cover. Rails also made substantial recoveries from recent heaviness, apparently reflecting the relief following the virtual elimination of the prospect for government interference. Chicago and Northwestern climbed 3 points while gains of 1 to 1½ were made by Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, New Haven, Atlantic Coast Line, Reading, Great Northern, preferred and Louisville and Nashville. Other individual strong spots, all at gains of 2 points or more, were Gulf Steel, American Car, Baldwin, Pullman, American Ice, Corn Products, Kresge and National Lead. There were few exceptions to the general upward movement, consolidated Gas dropping 1½ points, Jewell Tea, 2½, the preferred 5, and National Biscuit 2.

Call money opened and renewed at 3¾ per cent.

Buying in anticipation of higher dividend payments and aggressive pool operations caused a further marked rise in prices in the afternoon, especially in the public utility group. High records for the year were registered by many of these issues, Jewell Tea, preferred, extended its streak to 19 points, while Atlantic Gulf and Marine, preferred, were also depressed 1 to 1½ points.

The vigance in prices gained momentum during the afternoon in response to a brisk demand for rails, oils, equipments and special shares. The closing was strong.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 29.

WHEAT—Wheat prices started easier here today in sympathy with a decline in Liverpool. Houses with eastern connections were fair buyers of futures on the breaks during the early dealings and took part of the surplus out of the pit. Trade, however, was not large and the market was easily influenced. Initial quotations, which were ¼ to ⅜c lower with September $1.02⅝@1.03 and December $1.04¼@1.04¾, were followed by a slight general rise all around.

Shortly before the close reaction set in and sentiment in wheat became decidedly mixed with a lack of speculative interest the outstanding feature. The close was weak with values showing a net loss of 1¾ to 1⅞c, with September $1.02 and December $1.02⅝@1.02¾.

CORN—Coarse grains showed considerable resistance to selling pressure early. After starting at unchanged figures to ⅛c lower with September 69⅜@69¾c, the corn market hardened around the range. Scattered liquidation was on in corn with some stop-loss orders caught on the way down. The finish was weak, at a net decline of 1⅝ to 1¾c with September 69 @69½c to 69⅝c.

OATS—Oats were unchanged to ⅛c lower at the start, with September 32c, and then scored a slight rally.

PROVISIONS—Provisions were weak in line with lower quotations on hogs.

CONSIDER PLANS FOR ADDITIONS TO SARATOGA SCHOOL

the two districts, but at present the single supervision best meets the needs of the district, Miss Sadie Baird the principal of the New Elliott school, is to receive additional compensation of $200 because of the supervisory and consulting duties devolving upon her in connection with the Randolph school. The New Elliott schoolwill also have a full time office assistant on a nine month's basis.

Bills to the amount of $49,059.60 were allowed, the largest item of which, $26,291.14 was for the thirteenth estimate on Whittier presented by the Olson Construction company.

Following the withdrawal of Mrs. Cora F Warner from the meeting, the board resolved itself into a committee, owing to the absence of a quorum, for the consideration of the business, which will be presented to the board at the next session for ratification.

J. G. Ludlam, secretary of board gave a brief report of the secretary's office to comply with the employers liability act, saying that the board had only one or two small claims against it, and that a great deal of the hazardous work in connection with the razing and repairing of the school buildings was completed. The committee recommended subject to the ratification of the board, that the purchaseing committee be empowered to sell all material that was salvaged from the old building, provided that it could not be used in the construction or repair of other buildings. G. J. Culbertson, E. H. Schroder and either C. F. or H. J. Theobold were appointed a committe of three to appraise a lot adjoining the Elliott site on M street, which the board desires to purchase for the extension of the school grounds.

Depending upon future ratification, the committee recommended that a school lot in Woodcrest be sold for $1,095, the purchaser paying cash, and that $125 be accepted for a two-story frame building at 2260 Vine street, which is immediately west of the seventh and eighth grade Whittier building. The secretary read a report from the county treasurer that a 1920 tax of $415.65 stood against the site of the Prescott school. In his report, the secretary said that it had been impossible to have this cancelled but upon consultation with the board's attorney it had been found that it was unnecessary to pay this tax, as the district had secured the title to this site entirely free from lien or 1920 tax. With which, the committee agreed to ignore the tax.

quest. He made the startling declaration that under the code "forty bureaus have been abolished and five departments established."

"We are not ashamed of the record our party has made," Smith continued. "It is our business in the campaign to prevent the opposition from deceiving the voters. I believe the code bill is good in principle and, on the whole, it has been a good thing for the people."

Chairman Perry and ex-Chairman McCloud also assured the committee that the code law has been a benefit to the state. Mr. McCloud explained that taxes are high because Nebraska is paying for its roads as they are built, instead of issuing bonds, as Illinois and Missouri did, and thus shoving the burden off upon a future generation.

Would Divert Voters' Attention.

O. S. Spillman, nominee for attorney general, thought republican about the huge expenditures of the campaign speakers should take a good deal about the huge expenditures of the national government during the Wilson administration, as an answer to the democratic charges of extravagance in state affairs. His idea seemed to be that this might swing public opinion away from the code.

"The state candidates stand on the platform from top to bottom," he asserted. "It is only a matter of getting the facts to the people. We must not be discouraged by the noise the opposition is making. What we want to do is put the democrats on the defensive."

Walt Anderson, congressional nominee in the first district, said he had been around a good deal and found no disaffection among republican voters. He felt that the g. o. p. in Nebraska has the inside track, but said it would have to run in order to win.

Mr. McCloud saw a hard fight ahead and warned against overconfidence, but predicted victory for the republican ticket.

Rich Girl, Poor Girl

AN ABSORBING SERIAL BY

VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DEWATER

(Copyright, 1922, Star Company.)

he test came to Adelaide the following morning. When, after breakfast, she entered the invalid's room she was met by the question she was expecting and fearing.

"Addie," the mother quavered, how is Patty this morning Henry came in to say good-bye to me and told me she was still asleep. But she must be awake by now. Will you go and see?"

"Certainly." The reply was prompt.

Five minutes later the girl returned. "Miss Patricia is better," she announced. "She is up and will be in to see you soon."

The ordeal must be gone through with. Adelaide congratulated herself that the son of the house was breakfasting in his room and that she need not be seen by him in her assumed role.

It was when Miss Johnson went down to her breakfast that Adelaid appeared as Patricia Hollingshead. As the nurse left the room the attendant entered it. She was pale, but her voice was steady. Over her own dress she had slipped one of Patricia's silk and lace negligees.

"Good morning, Mother," she greeted the invalid. "I am sorry you have worried about me I came just as soon as I was allowed to."

Adelaide had summoned her courage for this task. She needed it all.

"Patty! Patty!" the blind woman eclaimed, stretching out her arms. "Oh, my darling litle girl—I havev been so anxious! come here, dear and let me hold you close!"

As Adelaide obeyed, the invalid folded her to her breast.

'My own litle girl!" the mother repeated, her voice breaking with emotion. "I have had such dreadful dreams about you! I dreamed you were lost in the snow—and—dead—gone forever—Patty!"

'Well, you see I am here safe and well!" the attendant managed to say.

"Yes—thank Heaven! But, dear, are you really well? Your voice sounds tired. Let me feel your face."

The thin fingers stroked the smooth, firm cheek. "You have no fever." the mother observed with satisfaction.

Excellent Imitations.

"Of course I have no fever:" Voice and manner were excellent imitations of Patricia's own when her mother had made some remark that annoyed her slightly. "Why should I have fever now—when I am all right again?"

The parent took a fold of the negligee in her fingers.

"You have on one of your pretty house gowns, haven't you?" she commented. "Is it the pink one you were telling me about?"

"Yes, the pink one."

"Sit down and talk to me!" Hannah Hollingshead urged.

Adelaide sat down. She must make some excuse for not staying long. The mother's emotion had affected her too strongly.

"I can stap only a few minutes, my dear," she said now. "Addie will be coming in to sit with you. And, although I am ever so much better than I was, I am going to be lazy today and lie down a good part of the time. By tomorrow I hope to be so well that I can dress, and, perhaps, go out just as usual."

"But you will be careful?" the invalid begged.

"Yes, I will be careful." the girl promised.

The fictitious strength that had come with the excitement of the moment was leaving the blind woman. She drew a long breath of weariness.

"You are tired and should not try to talk," her companion said softly. "I will stay here for a few minutes more if you keep quiet. Then I will go and send Addie in to you."

For five minutes she sat very still, watching the face on the pillow. Then she rose softly, but the invalid heard her.

"Are you going now?" she said. "Must you go?"

"Yes—for Addie warned me not to stay too long and prevent your resting," was the light response.

Again the mother held her arms out.

"Come back soon, darling!" she begged. "It seems as if years had passed since you went away on Sunday. What day is this?"

"Friday."

'And you have been ill all this time?"

Mere Prevarication.

"Well—I have stayed in my room ever since I got back on Sunday night," was the reply. "But you must remember that I have not been really ill—only on the verge of a bad cold. And you know there is nothing else so good as quiet and warmth if one wants to break up any kind of cold. Nevertheless, even if I have not been in here, I have heard regularly how you have been getting on. You have had some pretty bad days—at least so I understand from Addie. But now you are better."

"Yes—I am better because I have you—and Dick—safely at home and near me all the time," the mother smiled. "I suppose Dick has gone down town—hasn't he?"

"I do not know," the girl said.

But she did know. She also knew that soon the son of the house would come down stairs. There would be no difficulty in explaining his presence to his mother. She was accustomed to his frequent absences from the office. He never worked much—the girl reflected scornfully.

Her desire was to get away and divest herself of Patricia's negligee before Richard appeared.

"I will send Addie to you," she said now, disengaging herself from the mother's detaining arms. "So long! I will see you later!"

She hurried down to Patricia's silent room, took off the negligee and hung it in the closet. She had a strange sensation as if she and the dead girl were in a conspiracy. Or—was Patricia looking at her with the mocking smile that had sometimes come to the beautiful face?

Then, dismissing all these fancies as absurd Adelaide Brown went back to the sick room.
